The announcement comes after Microsoft on Friday defeated a last-ditch effort by the US Federal Trade Commission to scuttle the 💋 company's $68.7 billion purchase of Activision Blizzard. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals declined to grant the regulator an emergency stay 💋 of a ruling that allows the deal to proceed in the US. The United Kingdom's Markets and Competition Authority (CMA) 💋 is the last remaining regulator of note opposed to the purchase, but the watchdog and Microsoft recently agreed to put 💋 their legal battle over the deal on hold and negotiate a compromise.

We are pleased to announce that Microsoft and @PlayStation 💋 have signed a binding agreement to keep Call of Duty on PlayStation following the acquisition of Activision Blizzard. We look 💋 forward to a future where players globally have more choice to play their favorite games. Phil Spencer (@XboxP3) July 💋 16, 2024

Spencer did not disclose the terms of Microsoft's deal with Sony, though Stephen Totilo of Axios later confirmed that 💋 it is 10 years in duration. Microsoft first offered Sony a 10-year deal to keep Call of Duty on current 💋 and future PlayStation consoles at the end of last year, though the Japanese electronics giant turned down the olive branch 💋 at the time. In an effort to secure approval from regulators, including the FTC and CMA, Microsoft went on to 💋 sign an agreement with Nintendo to bring the series to the company's future consoles. It also came to terms with 💋 cloud gaming providers like NVIDIA.

Before today, Jim Ryan, the president and CEO of Sony Interactive Entertainment, made clear he was 💋 strongly opposed to Microsoft's Activision bid. I don't want a new Call of Duty deal. I just want to block 💋 your merger, Ryan told Activision CEO Bobby Kotick. I told him [Kotick] that I thought the transaction was anti-competitive, I 💋 hoped that the regulators would do their job and block it, Ryan later said during his testimony at the FTC 💋 v. Microsoft hearing. But with the purchase all but set to move forward, Sony likely had no choice but to 💋 come to terms with its rival.
