KUALA LUMPUR: Malaysian consumers pay considerably more for high-speed broadband access than those in other countries, the World Bank said. According to the bank's latest edition of the Malaysia Economic Monitor, the high cost of fixed broadband internet services is partly driven by limited competition.

Malaysia pays more for broadband access than other countries, according to a report by the World Bank. The report, titled 'Malaysia Economic Monitor', says that the high cost of fixed broadband internet services is partly driven by limited competition. The report also notes that the cost of mobile broadband services is also high, but that this is due to a combination of factors, including high network costs and limited competition.
