These texts served as a guide for the dead to use on their journeys to the afterlife. Each was prepared by scribes for burials, with varying quality depending on the scribe's skill, and some were prepared with blank spaces to later fill in the name of the dead.

During the New Kingdom period (1800-1400 BCE), the Book of the Dead was a collection of spells and prayers that were written on papyrus scrolls or on wooden tablets. The spells were intended to help the deceased navigate the underworld and reach the afterlife. The Book of the Dead was a highly valued and expensive item, and only the wealthy could afford a copy. It was often buried with the deceased, and some fragments have been found in tombs. The Book of the Dead was a key part of ancient Egyptian funerary practices, and it provided a blueprint for the deceased's journey to the afterlife.

Scholars hope that the newly joined fragments will reveal more information about ancient Egyptian funerary practices.
